

Infectious diseases and several methods of disease control in the Tatar ASSR in 1941-1945

Krivonozhkina E.

Kazan Federal University, 420008, Kremlevskaya 18, Kazan, Russia

Abstract

In this article the issue is the spread of infectious diseases among the civilian population of the rear area of the Tatar Autonomous Soviet Socialist Republic in the years of the Great Patriotic War, and the basic methods of disease control, the aggravation of the situation in connection with the evacuation of a great number of the population from the immediate battle area to the republic and the mobilization of the local medical personnel to the front line. Information on the disease severity and the clinical features of the disease course are accompanied by the statistical data. Archival sources, which formed the basis of this article, were not published by the researchers before; therefore they represent a great scientific interest. © IDOSI Publications, 2014.

<http://dx.doi.org/10.5829/idosi.wasj.2014.31.03.14301>

Keywords

Dysentery, Epidemic typhus, Infectious diseases, Mortality, Septic angina, Vaccination, War